1) The Center for the Future of Arizona (CFA): Five Communities Project – Deadline: letters of intent – May 16, 2011

Purpose: to develop action plans to move the communities forward in areas such as job creation, education, the environment, and civic engagement under its new initiative. In addition, CFA will jointly apply for national funding to implement the five plans over a three-year period. The Center is interested in communities that offer the most cost-effective financial strategies possible given the feasibility and potential impact of the ideas offered. All proposed projects must support specific goals that reflect the Gallup Arizona Poll findings. The poll and resulting "The Arizona We Want" report previously released by Gallup and CFA provide a clear and compelling picture of what citizens think about life in Arizona communities and what they want for the future.

Funding levels: range from approximately $25,000 to $100,000 annually for each of the five communities over a three-year funding period.

Eligibility: municipalities, school districts, tribal communities, economic development regions, religious communities and large neighborhood organizations

2) Robert Wood Johnson Foundation: Public Health Services and Systems Research Grants – Deadline: Brief Proposal – May 24, 2011

Purpose: to examine the organization, financing and delivery of public health services within a community and determines the links between the quality and performance of the public health system and population health outcomes. RWJF is supporting this field of research to advance public health practice and improve population health through evidence-based enhancements in the public health system. The National Network of Public Health Institutes serves as the administrative support office and will facilitate the call for proposals for this program, which will provide financial support to conduct research addressing the most critical issues facing the nation's public health system. The foundation will hold a Web conference for interested applicants on April 27, 2011. Registration for the Web conference is required.

Eligibility: public entities or nonprofit organizations or academic institutions that are tax-exempt under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Private foundations as defined under Section 509(a) of the Internal Revenue Code are eligible to apply. Preference will be given to proposals submitted by governmental public health agencies, nonprofit organizations that work in concert with such agencies, and proposals that involve multidisciplinary teams. Applicant organizations must be based in the United States or its territories. Practitioners, researchers, and policy makers may serve as principal investigators. This solicitation seeks to engage new researchers in the field of PHSSR. Researchers who have not previously conducted research in the field of PHSSR are encouraged to apply, and junior investigators (less than seven years since doctorate) and first-time applicants will be strongly considered.

Amount of funding: Approximately $2.7 million

Number of awards: Up to fourteen

Amount of each award: to $200,000 each in financial support to be used over a two-year period.
